

Economy That Proves Correct Design

Yosemite Run Gives Conclusive Evidence of Quality Construction and Economy of Triplex Springs

THE REMARKABLE OVERLAND VICTORY in the 355-mile Los Angeles-Yosemite Run registers another triumph for scientific light weight and the easy riding Triplex Springs. The winning Overland stock touring car registered an average of 35.1 miles per gallon throughout the entire mountainous trip. This is, of course, better than average Overland mileage, but it is gratifying to drive a car whose design insures the best use of every drop of fuel.

OBJECTS OF THE AUXILIARY

Women's Branch of Legion Has Same Ideas and Plans as Men's Organization.

The objects of the women's auxiliary are the same as those expressed in the constitution of the American Legion, and as that constitution was adopted conformably to the act of congress of September 16, 1919, incorporating the legion, the auxiliary and all its units.

"For God and Country," reads the preamble to the constitution, "we associate ourselves together for the following purposes:

"To uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States of America; to maintain law and order, to foster and perpetuate a 100 per cent Americanism; to preserve the memories and incidents of our association in the great war; to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state and nation; to combat the autocracy of both the classes and the masses; to make right the master of might; to promote peace and good will on earth; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of justice, freedom and democracy; to consecrate and sanctify our comradeship by our devotion to mutual helpfulness."

There are many forces which have served to give impetus to the movement among eligible American women to become actively identified with the legion through one or another of its more than 9,000 community posts, but to this preamble, more than to any other one thing, is attributed the success and nation-wide enthusiasm which has greeted everywhere the suggestion of forming an auxiliary unit. When it is considered that this suggestion usually comes from the individual legionnaire direct to his mother, wife, sister or daughter, who in turn transmits it to women relatives of other legionnaires in her community, thus invited to join by the double investigation both within and outside the immediate family circle, it is easily understood that such an appeal proves almost universally irresistible.

LEGION'S FOURFOLD PROGRAM

Members Urged to Familiarize Themselves With Facts Concerning Beneficial Legislation.

The American Legion's fourfold optional plan of beneficial legislation embraces the following provisions:

1. Land settlement, whereby ex-service men will be assisted in purchasing a farm in any state, reimbursing the government for funds advanced by easy payments extending over a period of ten years or more.

2. Home aid, whereby ex-service men will get government assistance in purchasing a home.

3. Vocational training, whereby an ex-service man may learn a trade or vocation with the assistance of the government.

4. Adjusted compensation based on length of military service. This would go automatically to the beneficiaries of those who died in service, to all disabled men, and to those ex-service men who do not elect to avail themselves of one of the foregoing provisions.

The plan is designed to overcome the financial disadvantages incidental to military service. It is the result of a careful study of the needs and wishes of ex-service men of every state. The economic value to the United States of re-establishing the ex-soldier in the present period of readjustment and low production is considered to be great.

The legion has asked that congress, by meeting the nation's obligation to the ex-service man, be as liberal as is consistent with the welfare of the country. It has recommended that the extent to which assistance is given to the individual ex-service man be based upon his length of service.

Members of the legion are urged to familiarize themselves with these facts so that they may assist in dispelling the misunderstanding now surrounding the legion's program.

Ohio Post Sets Record.

Springfield, O., has hung up a record in getting new members for the Legion that other communities will have a hard time bettering. The Springfield post put on its campaign for four days recently. The city was organized into ward and precinct teams. Solicitors worked in pairs and backed up promptly into corners and took their cash, usually without protest. The names of men who refused to join were turned in at post headquarters and a corps of expert salesmen were put on the trail of these hard nuts. The friendly co-operation of business houses, newspapers and motion picture theaters was secured. The result, looked up when the dust settled after the four days and it was discovered that the post had increased its membership from 150 to 1,700.

Sure Was Embarrassed.

"I suppose you were very frightened once or twice in France?"

"Now. Once, though, I was sure embarrassed. I was just going into an estaminet. I had my hand on the doorknob, when along comes a Boche seventy-seven. Knocks the whole damned shanty into kingdom come, and leaves me there with the doorknob in my hand. I sure felt foolish."

Two Posts Combine.

Two posts of the American Legion organized in Galveston, Tex., combined their membership and the organization is now known as Argonne post No. 20. The post has its own chaplains with a library, billiard room and billiards.

Whiskers Explained.

The early Jews were literally long on whiskers and made good use of them. The Jew's beard was a sort of standing notice to the world concerning his state of mind. If everything was propitious—wife and children well and business good—his beard was combed out and perhaps oiled. But if death had entered his family, his beard was a mere tangled mass of hair. The condition of the whiskers also indicated the existence of other emotions.
